Summer 2019

Turning up the Heat on International Talent

BRINGING TRANSFORMATIONAL TALENT TO LUXEMBOURG

Andrew Greening and his team have been accessing and delivering international talent to Luxembourg for the last 25 years, enabling the successful launch of new eco-systems across Digital Television, Banking Technology, Payments and now High-Performance Computing (HPC).

The Summer of 2019 has been testament to how GREENINGS continues to serve the needs of government and businesses needing to seamlessly access global talent, equipping Luxembourg organisations with world-class leadership to be successful on an ever more competitive and disruptive international stage.

PwC Luxembourg needed to access international markets to make their most significant HR appointment, Managing Director Human Capital Leader, supporting the CEO in his transformation of the business and talent resources.

Greenings conducted an international search covering the US and Europe, rapidly delivering candidates from global organisations across FMCG, Technology, Financial & Professional Service sectors.

Lieven Lambrecht, formerly HR Director at Swift, Western Union and First Data started on the 2nd September and will relocate with his family to Luxembourg. Lieven's breadth of international experience will bring enormous value to PwC and the HR community in Luxembourg.

23 years after designing and delivering the recruitment project for the launch of Digital Television CLT/RTL, Greenings has been selected to support the launch of High-Performance Computing (HPC) for Luxembourg – LuxProvide.

Greenings are conducting international searches to find the new CEO and other leadership positions, readily accessing the world's leading HPC Research Centres and commercial organisations to bring best in class talent to Luxembourg.

The EU has granted Luxembourg an HPC licence, signalling the creation of a new HPC Centre in Bissen.

LuxProvide will enable the digital transformation across all sectors in the Grand-Duchy, as well as competing for international revenues providing services to global organisations. Applications will drive growth in the SME sectors, providing leverage in the use of research, data analytics, Ai and smart mobility across business, engineering and science. LuxProvide intends to be listed amongst the World Top 500 HPC organisations.
